

Congressman King surveys area flooding, fills sandbags alongside local residents

Washington D.C.- Congressman Steve King (R-IA) released the following statement after meeting yesterday afternoon with county and local officials in Woodbury County to be briefed on current efforts to protect area communities from Missouri River flood damage. The briefing, which occurred at the Emergency Operations Center at Western Iowa Tech Community College, was attended by officials representing Woodbury County and the local communities of Sioux City, Hornick, Salix, Sergeant Bluff, and Sloan. Prior to the briefing, King filled sandbags at the Long Lines Family Rec Center, and he surveyed area flooding with Sioux City's City Manager, Paul Eckert, and Sioux City's Public Works Director, Chris Payer.
